A PARISIAN RUSE.

The Dressmaker's Lure That Ensnared the Americans.

Grace Margaret Gould tells in the September Woman's Home Companion some of the ways the Parisian dressmaking establishments sell their goods to American women. Here is one ruse that she saw worked in one of the biggest establishments in Paris:

There was a sudden and evident commotion among the employees. "The princess! The princess! She has arrived!" they cried.

American eyes began to bulge. Out from a magnificent equipage stepped a regally gowned grand lady. attended by footmen and maid and received by the whole bowing establishment, to the neglect of all other customers. She was in a gracious mood this day and easy to be pleased. praising their past efforts and selecting several of their new creations without regard to cost. After she had made her departure amid like ceremonies there was no need of the saleswoman bothering her head over suggestions. Every American woman present wanted a gown copied from the one the princess had bought, and she got it after much pleading and at a price far beyond the limit she had

And the point of this fable is this: The princess was no princess, but an employee of the house.

Every French gown has two pricesan American price and a French price. It is needless to say which is the greater price.

Along about April the cry goes up. "The Americans are coming!" and then the prices go up too.

Along about November, when the Americans have left, you might almost say they are giving away gowns, only the Frenchman never does give away anything. Then it is that the Frenchwoman in general and the French actress in particular selects her wardrobe.

The Bad Spot.

An Irishman one day was told to put up a signboard on which were the words, "To Motorists-This Hill Is Dangerous."

Away went Mike with the signboard and placed it at the bottom of a very steep hill. A few days later his employer went to see how the board was put up and, finding it at the bottom of the hill, sought and found Mike.

"You blooming fool!" he cried. "Why didn't you put that sign in the right place?"

"Shure and sin't it?" asked Mike. 'Don't all the accidents happen at the bottom?"-Harper's Weekly.

Spanish Nicknames.

One of the peculiar ways in which Spanish differs from English is in the names the language gives to all people with a certain infirmity or peculiarity. A blind man is referred to as el ciego, a man with but one eye is a tuerto, a pug nosed man is chato, one who is cross eyed is a bisojo, a cojo is a lame man, and a manco has but one arm. If he is humpbacked, he is a jorobado; if baldheaded, a calvo, and if his hair is very short he is a pelon. The feminine titles for the same classes are the same, with the exception that they end in "a" where the masculine terminate with "o." These short names are used most commonly. In fact, they are applied as nicknames in many cases, and especially among the lower classes persons are addressed or re-ferred to only by these names.

A Wedding Present.

A widower in Scotland proposed to and was accepted by a widow whose busband had died but a month or two

To celebrate the occasion he asked the widow's daughter what she would like for a present. She wanted nothing, she said, but being pressed to name something she replied:

"Well, if you want to spend siller you might put up a heldstone to my father."-London Telegraph.

The Diving Bell.

The celebrated philosopher Aristotle speaks of a diving bell which was put over the head of the diver, but there is no proof of the use of the bell in ancient times. John Jaesnier, who lived in the early part of the sixteenth century, makes the earliest mention of the practical use of the diving bell n Europe. In all probability the first real practical use of the diving bell was in the attempt at rescuing the treasures of the Spanish armada off the English coast, 1590 and on.

Liferary Taste.

"I have written a book that everybody ought to read." said the author. "I am afraid it won't do." answered the publisher. "What the public seems to want now is a book that nobody ought to read."—Washington Star.

Special School Tax. To the School Patrons and All Citizens of St. Lucie County:

The petitions now being circulated are for the purpose of making a special school district out of the entire county and of raising funds by a special 3 mill tax for two years. These funds so tax for two years. These funds so raised can be used only for the current running expenses of the schools of the county, and no part of it can be used to pay back debts, or any other purpose. The school board is nearly $8,000 in debt and paying interest on 3000 in debt and paying interest on same of nearly $40 monthly. The purpose of the school board is to pay up this debt with the general tax, and use the special tax for running the schools the special tax for running the schools—thus clearing the county of all school debt in two years, which certainly looks like the wisest thing to do, and the only practical way to maintain and advance the cause of education in the county.

We hope every property owner will sign the petition as quickly as he gets an opportunity to do so. Resp'y,

K. M. TEDDER,

Supt. St. Lucie County.
